

Saltair

This feature is located in a residential backyard within an inviting outdoor dining space, yet visible from most anywhere in the back terrace and garden space. The feature consists of two offset half-round stainless steel structures, topped with an upper pool featuring granite. The sculpture is 3 ft. tall and approx. 2 ½ ft. wide. The varied textures of water are truly showcased in this piece with the still pool at the top, rough flowing water down polished stainless steel, and water falling in rivulets at the bottom to make the sculpture “float.” Underwater lighting is used to illuminate the center gap and river rock offers an appealing cover for the bottom basin.

Type

Polished stainless steel water sculpture

Materials

stainless steel, granite, river rocks

Location

Los Angeles, CA