

Olympic Plaza

In the heart of a commercial plaza in Los Angeles, CA, a striking 9 ft. copper podium with a rich dark bronze patina takes center stage. Extending gracefully from a landscaped bed, it intersects a tile-clad pool, creating a visually stunning focal point. Three precision nozzles produce outward flowing waves, forming interlocking concentric circles across the shallow upper pool. Water cascades down two-thirds of the podiums' surface, which is designed with a drip ledge, allowing droplets to fall delicately into the pool below. The remaining third of the pool is bordered by a raised lip, effectively keeping the water contained and protecting the surrounding landscape.
