

Indian Wells Water Wall

A multi-panel, mirror-polished stainless steel water wall brings to life the entryway of a private residence at The Vintage Club in Indian Wells, California. Built into the wall structure, mesmerizing water waves glide 10 feet down and disappear into a basin beneath the floor that is covered by white beach pebbles. Serving as both a sculptural partition and a striking focal point, this distinctive feature introduces the movement of cascading water into the historic home, creating an atmosphere of elegance and delight from the moment of arrival.
